

IN FULL RETREAT

Republican Convention Steps Backward from Advanced Positions

VOTE OF SEVEN TO ONE

Against Election of U. S. Senators by the People—Seven Steps in the Retrograde Movement.

Under the heading "In Full Retreat" William J. Bryan, in the latest issue of The Commoner, discussed the platform adopted at the recent Republican convention at Chicago as follows:

"The Republicans who attended the national convention as spectators and joined in the demonstration in favor of President Roosevelt and Senator LaFollette must have felt indignant as they watched the panic-stricken delegates running over each other in their effort to get away from the La Follette reforms, some of which have been indorsed by the President himself.

"Congressman Cooper, of Wisconsin, representing the La Follette men, brought in a minority report signed by himself alone. Fifty-two members of the committee signed the majority report and one signed the minority report. The Republican party will find the ratio of fifty-two to one a very embarrassing one to deal with in the coming campaign.

"Mr. Cooper's report contained a declaration in favor of publicity as to campaign funds. It was lost by a vote of 88 to 94, more than nine to one, and yet the President has been advocating legislation in favor of publicity as to campaign contributions and Secretary Taft wrote a letter to Mr. Burrows advocating the passage of a publicity bill.

"How fortunate it was that Secretary Taft's letter was finally discovered and published! Senator Burrows, the man to whom the Taft letter was addressed, was the temporary chairman of the convention, and the convention over which he presided turned down the publicity plank by a vote of 9 to 1! Who will deny that, on this subject, the Republican party is retreating?

"Another plank of the La Follette platform authorized the ascertaining of the value of the railroads. This plank was lost by a vote of 917 to 66, nearly 15 to 1, and yet President Roosevelt has advocated this very proposition. Here is a retreat on the railroad question.

"Retreat on Injunctions."

"In another column reference is made to the injunction plank. The injunction plank adopted by the Republican convention is a retreat from the position taken by the President and from the position taken by Secretary Taft in his speeches, although neither of them went as far as they ought to have gone in their effort to prevent what is known as 'government by injunction.' Here is the third retreat.

"The President has advocated the income tax as a means of preventing swollen fortunes and of equalizing the burdens of government. The Republican platform is silent on the subject. Was the President right in the position he took? If so, then the convention was wrong in not indorsing him. Will the Republican voters follow the President in this just demand, or will they follow the Republican organization in retreating from it?

"The President advocated an inheritance tax, but the Republican convention is silent on that subject. Was the President ahead of the Republican party in advocating this reform, or has the Republican party receded from the President's position? Did the President give a false alarm on this question, or has the party sounded a retreat?

"In the President's message to Congress last spring he presented an indictment against the conspiracy formed among the great lawbreakers to prevent the enforcement of the law and to evade the punishments provided by law. The platform adopted by the Republican convention contains no intimation of danger.

"If there are any conspiracies, the convention did not see them; if there are any combinations, it had not heard of them; if there are any dangers, they are unconscious of them.

GROVER CLEVELAND DEAD

Ex-President Answers Final Summons at Princeton Home.

Grover Cleveland, twice President of the United States and one of the Nation's most distinguished citizens, died at his home at Princeton, N. J., at 8:40 o'clock Wednesday morning of heart failure and other complications, aged 71 years, three months and six days.

The funeral of the former President will be held Friday at Westland, Mr. Cleveland's residence on Bayard lane, Princeton, and will in deference to Mrs. Cleveland's wishes, be private.

Life of Grover Cleveland.

Grover Cleveland, American statesman, twenty-second President of the United States, was born in Caldwell, N. J., March 18, 1837. He began to earn his first money as a teacher, but candidate for President on the Democratic ticket in 1884.

Elected President in 1884.

Cleveland was elected, although his opponent was James G. Blaine, the idol of the Republican party, and a man of great personal magnetism. The contest was most bitter and close, Cleveland receiving 219 votes in the electoral college to Blaine's 182. Immediately on his accession to office he began to redeem the promises he had made to himself and the people. The Republicans, adhering to the policy of protection and high tariff, in 1888 nominated Benjamin Harrison to oppose Cleveland, and Harrison was elected by a small plurality, but in 1892, when these two men were again opposed for this soon developed a talent for law. In 1859, when but twenty-two years of age, he was admitted to the bar in Buffalo, N. Y. He soon became known as a young man who feared nothing when principle was at stake.

Four years after he began the practice of law in Buffalo he was chosen district attorney of Erie county, thus beginning his remarkable political career which was to carry him with rapid strides to the highest office in the gift of the American people. In 1870 Mr. Cleveland was elected sheriff of Erie county. He so satisfied the people of the city and county that in 1881 he was the unanimous choice of his party for Mayor of Buffalo, and was elected to that office. When in 1882 the Democratic leaders of New York were seeking a man to lead the party the Mayor of Buffalo was suggested as a candidate for Governor. He was nominated with little opposition and elected by the immense majority of nearly 200,000 votes, which was due largely to his personal popularity. His course as Governor met with the endorsement of a majority of men of all parties, and he was the logical high office, Cleveland won by a large majority.

Retired to Private Life.

His course during his two terms as President was at all times vigorous, determined and able. There was talk of again nominating Mr. Cleveland for President in 1896, but the feeling against a third term was too general, and Mr. Cleveland retired to private life in 1897, taking up his residence at Princeton, N. J. He was the only surviving President of the United States. Mr. Cleveland received the degree of LL. D. from Princeton University. His last significant public act was a speech at the opening of the St. Louis Exposition in May, 1904.

Mr. Cleveland married, while in the White House, Miss Frances Folsom, of Buffalo, the daughter of one of his old friends, and she survives him with two sons and two daughters. After his retirement from public life he engaged in the practice of law, associating himself with a prominent law firm in New York.

The illness which led to his death began several months ago.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

June 21, 1908.

To the People of the United States:

Grover Cleveland, President of the United States from 1885 to 1889, and again from 1893 to 1897, died at 8:40 o'clock this morning at his home in Princeton, N. J. In his death the nation has been deprived of one of its greatest citizens. By profession a lawyer, his chief services to his country were rendered during a long, varied and honorable career in public life.

As mayor of his city, as governor of his state, and twice as President he showed signal power as an administrator, coupled with entire devotion to the country's good and a courage that quailed before no hostility when once he was convinced where his duty lay. Since his retirement from the Presidency he has continued well and faithfully to serve his countrymen by the simplicity, dignity and unrighteousness of his private life.

In testimony of the respect in which his memory is held by the government and people of the United States, I do hereby direct that the flags on the White House and the several departmental buildings be displayed at half staff for a period of thirty days; and that suitable military and naval honors under the orders of the Secretaries of War and of the Navy be rendered on the day of the funeral.

Done this twenty-fourth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eight and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-second.

By the President,

Alvey A. Adee, Acting Secretary of State.

TAFT AND SHERMAN

The Republican National Convention at Chicago last week nominated William Howard Taft of Ohio for President, and James C. Sherman for Vice President. Both were nominated on the first ballot. Taft was placed on the ticket on Thursday but Sherman was not named until the next day and not then until after the White House approval was telephoned.

IN OLDEN TIMES

When Boys and Girls Studied By Pine Light on Hearth

VACATIONS ON THE FARM

Spelling Schools Popular—Teachers Required to Treat—How the Girls Were Caught.

Written by "Philip's Boy"

The Last Day

The last day of school was the climax. It was heralded to all the schools in the county, and on that day the battle of the "deestric" or township came off, and the boy or girl who carried off the honors on that day was a Napoleon. Sometimes there was "cheatin' done." To prevent this each side would choose a watcher, who was supplied with a book, to watch the teacher to keep him from cheating. Teachers generally arranged so that their schools did not end on the same day, so they could attend each other's last day's festivities.

Catching the Girls

After the last day's exercises were over, which consisted of speeches, essays, spelling, etc., there would be spelling school at night. After all these meetings were over came the fun of taking the girls home. Sometimes you took one and sometimes you got the "sack." And one's heart was in his mouth until the girl said either "yes" or "no." It was not the custom to catch a girl in the school house, but watch for her to come to the door and catch her on the sly. A man seldom caught a girl inside unless he knew there was sharp competition about the door; then he had to get bold and ask her before the old folks and all. If he did that he generally got her, for the girl considered it an honor to have a beau bold enough to take her out of the house. To catch a fellow asking her was thought a treat. The beaux rarely went with the girls in the day time; that was too much; and anyhow, when girls got home they had their work to do and no time to talk to beaux. If one went in the day time he had to talk to the old folks, except what words he got along the way on the sly.

The Vacation

After school was out it seemed a long time till the next winter—eight or nine long, hot months of hard work and little pay but bread and "spread." A boy had to chop and grub, burn brush, haul stones, plow corn with an old one-horse tumble-over shovel plow, pull weeds, dig burdock, mow briers, pull flax and then break and scutch it, thresh grain with a hickory flail turn about with one, two, three or four men, and keep stroke or get his head cracked. His arms would ache so that he couldn't eat or sleep. But it all had to be done to get ready for school on the first day. The corn must be husked, chestnuts gathered, walnuts hulled and dried, the apples picked, the buckwheat threshed, the winter's wood hauled and have your new yearly suit of casinet made till school opened. That was the first day for wearing your new cowhide shoes as the old ones were generally out at the big toe long before school opened. One pair of shoes per year was all they got, and in some cases the oldest boy had to wear daddy's old ones.

Cowhide Shoes

The new cowhides generally took the skin all off the top of the toes and heels before they got broke in, but there was no taking them back. Paddy McGee, the shoemaker, had measured the foot before he made them, and they had to fit, sooner or later—generally later. Then the new fall shirts, which were made of flax—it would take a month's wearing to get them so they wouldn't scratch, and sometimes the hickory on the back in school would feel good compared with the awful raking the new flax (or tow) shirt would give a boy. But when he got the shirts and the shoes broke in he was good for the winter school, unless no machine came around to thresh the winter grain; then it was thump, thump from morning till night, stay home from school to thresh, thresh, till we would wish that next year daddy would sow all buckwheat. Those were strenuous days, but the boy who stood going through the flint mill was educated for life. Some things were not so pleasant, but after being tied up for years in a busy city life it would be quite a recreation to take a winter's course over.

Rules of the School

Besides the use of the rod, many other modes of punishment were resorted to, but a pupil was never spanned. He had to toe the mark at the school house. The teacher was the law, and the judge, and the jury. No case was taken before the trustees or board of education. The teacher in some way meted out the punishment right then and there. If a pupil was too large to submit to the punishment he or she had a right to take his books and those under the, but the smaller ones—those under the age of 18—had to submit to whatever punishment the schoolmaster (not teacher then) chose to inflict. Generally the rod was used, but sometimes they were stood on the floor, in a corner, made to wear the dunce cap or sit on a dunce stool, which was made for the purpose. Some schoolmasters made bad pupils wear leather "specs," or a boy sit with the girls and be called sissy, or a bad girl sit with the boys and be called tomboy. This to some was severe punishment because to have to sit with one of the opposite sex in broad daylight was humiliating for children were not accustomed to sitting near those of opposite sex. Each sex had its side in school, church, and at all other gatherings. Pupils were always made to sit by one they didn't like. Sometimes the teacher would make a boy sit on one end of the wooden poker which lay across the stove mouth, and he didn't dare to put any weight on it to make it tilt. If he tilted the poker he got a thrashing. To be kept in at the noon hour was the most dreaded punishment. There was no recess. Tell no tale out of school was a law; violate that and your back or legs paid the penalty. The tattler was despised by all. Other rules were: Write no love letters; no swearing nor fighting on the school grounds or going to or from school; no loitering along the way; no entering the school house say "good morning;" on leaving say "good evening;" no helping one another in studies; all books must be covered and have the corners cut; no stealing thumb-papers; no sticking with pins; no talking aloud. One coming in after roll call got a black mark, which was much dreaded. No marks were made opposite one's name on the roll for being present. To have a clean record was a high ambition. To stand at the head of the class was another high honor. Another rule was that none should make fun of another's clothes; and another rule was, eat no chestnuts or roasted corn in time of school. Every schoolmaster had his set of rules, too numerous to mention.

School Girl's Dress

A school girl's dress then was quite different from now. She wore heavy calfskin shoes, homemade, a homemade flannel or linsey dress and petticoat made all in one piece. On warm days she wore a sunbonnet, sometimes white, but generally of some dark color; in colder weather she wore a hood knit by herself or her mother, and a homemade shawl, knit mittens, and stockings of wool. Every garment was homemade. She generally plaited her hair. A romp with boys, snowballing, or any other strenuous exercise did not affect her dress. She was dressed for any occasion. She was "all wool and a yard wide." Boys at noon played town-ball, two-paddle-ball, hockey, fox, cat, tipple, shinny, I-spy, high-sky, over-hill, prisoner's-base, etc. Boys did considerable wrestling. Every boy knew who all he could throw down. They wrestled back holds, side holds, arms' length or hooked arms. Ring wrestling was also popular. They also did much hopping and jumping and ran foot races.

Writing

The teacher always wrote the copy for pupils learning to write. The first copy would be straight marks, then curves, then pothooks, a b's small, then capitals, and small words leading on and on to sentences and verses. The writer remembers many of the copies, each having a message, as—

Command you may your mind from play.

Many men of many minds, many birds of many kinds.

Dare not to make a mock of another's infirmities.

Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

Stomach troubles are very common in the summer time and you should not only be very careful about what you eat just now, but more than this, you should be careful not to allow your stomach to become disordered, and when the stomach goes wrong take Kodol. #### Of Interest to Democrats

The National Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee has begun active operations at its headquarters at Washington, D. C. In addition to its regular work, it is now preparing a Campaign hand-book which it hopes to have ready for distribution by July 1—two or three months earlier than heretofore.

The Committee is charged with the duty of assisting, in every way possible, the election of a Democratic Congress. We wish the active co-operation of every voter in the United States who believes, with us, that the election of a Democratic Congress would greatly benefit the country.

We must rely upon the people to sustain our work by giving information as to local conditions, and suggestions for our guidance.

Each individual can at least aid us by making a contribution. Will he not do so and interest others in helping us, too?

We wish our Campaign hand-book distributed as generally as possible, and we will furnish a copy, as soon as published, to every one who contributes to our Committee.

Send remittances to me at Washington, D. C. James T. Lloyd, Chairman.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

Dipping fresh fish in scalding water will cause the scales to come off more easily.

To make stale bread tie it in a paper sack and place in a hot oven for a minute or two.

A teaspoonful of lemon juice to a quart of water will make rice white and keep the grains separate when done.

Save all lemon rind, dry it in the oven, grate and store in an air-tight tin. A little of this added to an apple pie gives a delicious flavor.

Omelets are more tender if the eggs are thinned with hot water instead of milk. Before folding the plain omelet spread it, for a change, with a green pepper minced fine. The pepper does not need previous cooking.

Even delicate glass can be safely washed in very hot water if slipped in edgewise.

Lamp-wicks soaked in vinegar some twenty-four hours before being used will give a clearer flame and a steadier light than those not so treated.

Mix lemon juice and salt. Rub into white goods to remove iron rust. Place it in the sun to dry and repeat if necessary.

Fruit stains may be removed by pouring boiling water over the article, then washing.

Never use soap on painted floors, as it removes the paint. Dust the floor carefully with a dry mop, then wipe with a cloth wrung out of clear warm water. If the floor is very dirty add a little borax to the water.

To save time when baking potatoes heat them through on top of stove before placing in oven and they will bake in one-half the time otherwise required.

Mrs. S. L. Bowen of Wayne, W. Va., writes: "I was a sufferer from kidney disease, so that at times I could not get out of bed, and when I did I could not stand straight. I took Foley's Kidney Remedy. One dollar bottle and part of the second cured me entirely." Foley's Kidney Remedy works where others are a total failure. Ed. D. Heckerman.

FASHION NOTES

Swiss watchmakers are making finger-ring watches.

The button pins are used where the hair is worn on top of the head.

Combs are smarter when made with plain tops, without knobs or other decorations.

The new hatpins have huge ball heads of platinum thickly studded with jewels.

Colored embroidery will be as fashionable for lingerie hats this summer as it is for thin frocks.

Stripes are getting wider and wider as the season advances. The newest ones are fully three-quarters of an inch in width.

The plain amber-colored combs and pins for the blond girl, and those in dark shell for the brunette, are entirely correct.

Cuffs, collars, buttons and other touches of black linen will be seen on coat and skirt suits of linens in the dainty colors.

There is no prettier use for the fine colored embroideries than in making up dainty matinees, dressing jackets, negligees, etc.

PASTORS AS MOLLYCODDLES

"Billy" Sunday, Baseball Evangelist, Also Calls Them Other Names.

The Rev. "Billy" Sunday, the evangelist, delivered an address to the Presbyterian ministers of Pittsburgh recently. His words caused consternation among the preachers, some of whom left the First Presbyterian church, their dignity stung, but most of them remained to the end.

Mr. Sunday, who is a former professional ball player, has been conducting a revival at Sharon, near here, and came to Pittsburgh to speak on "Why Some Ministers Fail."

The evangelist said many of the ministers of the present day were "fudge-eating mollycoddles, who were continually springing bum bullion to their congregations." He asserted that few ministers of today are anything but "stiffs and salary quacks," willing to accept social distinction, and that many of them are qualified candidates for the "funny" house.

Continuing, he said: "Some of you ministers are controlled by riches and not by the Bible. Many of you are grafters, pure and simple. You know this, too. There are some of you preaching today that should be carrying the hod."

"What we do want is to tear down the seminaries and stand the professors on their heads in mud puddles. A seminary and its teachings are of no more use to preaching than a crane's legs are to a setting hen."

"I am not an osteopath. I am a surgeon, and my line is to cut out the abscess in the side of the church."

Pittsburg, Pa.

W. R. Ward of Dyersburg, Tenn., writes: "This is to certify that I have used Foley's Orino Laxative for chronic constipation, and it has proven without a doubt to be a thorough, practical remedy for this trouble, and it is with pleasure I offer my conscientious reference." Ed. D. Heckerman.

A January bride will be a prudent housekeeper and very good tempered. A February bride will be a kind and affectionate wife and tender mother. A March bride will be a frivolous chatterbox, somewhat given to quarreling. An April bride will be inconstant, not very intelligent, but fairly good looking. A May bride will be handsome, amiable and likely to be happy. A June bride will be impetuous and generous. A July bride will be handsome and smart, but a trifle quick-tempered. An August bride will be amiable and practical. A September bride will be discreet. An October bride will be pretty, coquettish, loving, but jealous. A November bride will be liberal. A December bride will be fond of novelty and entertaining.

STRIKING MORNING DRESS.

THIS model with its extreme simplicity is in very good style, for women of taste are quick to recognize the inappropriateness of the short sleeved, fluffy lingerie waists for ordinary morning wear.

Linen is not always an economical or serviceable fabric to choose for everyday wear, but the piques have all its good qualities without the bad. Manufacturers have improved over the old style piques, and they hold an important place in the cotton goods shown this spring. Any of the thin goods, such as lawn or dimity, make up effectively. Particularly pretty for an elderly woman is a white lawn trimmed with black and white striped material. It gives the all white a very pretty touch, and, as the turnover collars are rarely becoming to a neck that has any lines in it, she can wear a soft lace stock. Another new-old style is the low neck and the large cameo brooch.

The striped seersuckers and heavy pongees are very much in favor for the one piece suits. Particularly pretty for young girls are the tan pongees with colored stripes. They give just that touch of color that is necessary in the fashionable garment for the spring. There are also rajahs and tussorees that come with green, black and red stripes so blended that there is no objection from the artistic viewpoint. A white petticoat should always be worn with these striped frocks—in fact, is absolutely necessary if the effect is to be pleasing.

For practical everyday usefulness the model would be exceedingly pretty carried out in any of these materials. The skirt and waist are put together with a two inch belt of the material.

The sleeves are quite small, and the cuff is about five inches deep, fastened at the back with white linen buttons. The pattern is cut in seven sizes—from 32 to 44 inches bust measure. To copy this garment for the average person it requires 14½ yards of material 27 inches wide or 11½ yards 36 inches wide.

Any reader of this paper who desires to secure this pattern may do so by sending 10 cents to this office. Give the number, 4093, state size desired and write the full address plainly. The pattern will be forwarded promptly by mail.

POULTRY HINTS

A fowl of medium weight is best for most poultry keepers. Among breeds which meet this requirement the Wyandottes stand high.

A report just received from an Australian experiment station says six hens under observation have laid more than 1,000 eggs in seven and one-half months. Last year at the same station six hens laid more than 1,400 eggs in a year.

Egg-eating is a habit hens sometimes fall into. A good way to prevent this is to make the nests rather dark, give the hens straw to work in, and in the straw keep half a dozen china nest eggs for them to dig out. They learn that they cannot break the nest eggs, and do not try the real ones.

There is no best way to feed hens, nor any best formula. Give them "a little of everything," keep them busy, never let them go hungry and they will do their best.

The wastes from an ordinary kitchen will half keep a dozen hens and turn into eggs what would otherwise go into the garbage box.

Try to get a good start with the bred-to-lay kind. They are becoming more common every year.—Home Magazine.

NO HUMBAG

No humbug claims have to be made for Foley's Honey and Tar, the well known remedy for coughs, colds and lung troubles. The fact that more bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar are used than of any other cough remedy is the best testimonial of its great merit. Why then risk taking some unknown preparation when Foley's Honey and Tar costs you no more and is safe and sure. Ed. D. Heckerman.

A BUNCH OF DON'TS

Don't exercise after you feel exhausted.

Don't fail to laugh at your husband's jokes.

Don't treat your family to a morning view of hair curlers.

Don't neglect the daily bath if you want a radiant complexion.

Don't forget that diet, quiet and sleep are the handmaids of beauty.

Don't be afraid of sunshine and fresh air; they give bloom and color.

Don't wear a high collar. It ruins the line and curve of the neck and hardens the flesh and often leaves its mark.

Don't talk when you are hoarse. Your voice may be permanently lost or difficulties of the throat result.

Don't ride in an open carriage or near the open window of a car after playing golf or exercising in a vigorous way.

Don't exercise one part of the body too much and another not at all. Let the development be symmetrical.

Don't become so burdened with the accumulation of knowledge that you cannot spare time for a good hearty laugh.

Don't think "any old dress will do for home." Always wear a pretty and becoming gown.

Don't tell your husband you wish you hadn't married him. The chances are that you don't wish it any more than he does.

Don't believe you can get rid of wrinkles by filling in the crevices with powder. Wash instead.

Electric Bitters regulate the digestive functions, purify the blood, and impart renewed vigor and vitality to the weak and debilitated of both sexes. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c.

The Life's Aim

If there be good in what I wrought, Thy hand compelled it, Master, Thine;

Where I have failed to meet Thy thought I know, through Thee, the blame is mine.

One instant's all to Thee denied Stands all Eternity's offense, Of that I did with Thee to guide To Thee, through Thee, be excellence.

The depth and dream of my desire, The bitter paths wherein I stray, Thou knowest who has made the fire, Thou knowest who has made the clay.

One stone the more swings to her place In that dread Temple of Thy worth— It is enough that through Thy grace I saw naught common on Thy earth.

—Rudyard Kipling.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup is the one that children like so well to take as it tastes nearly as good as maple sugar. ## How to Teach Truthfulness

Teach the truth by being absolutely truthful. You have sharp little eyes in your home, seeing more than you imagine, and ears that drink in every word; minds that think over all that is done and pass judgment on all; so be very careful. If you make a promise, however small, to your child, keep it faithfully. In this way does your child learn to be a man of his word in after years. Do not give too many orders, but when an order is given be sure that it is obeyed. Never permit a child to tease you into anything. If it can have what it requests, give it at once, but if it is "no," then stick to it. But consider it well, and do not say "no" when it might just as well be "yes."

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Before the shades of night shall again have settled the remains of Grover Cleveland, twice President of the United States and perhaps the most distinguished private citizen in the whole world, will have been laid to their final rest and the sage of Princeton, the distinguished statesman, honored and respected, whose advice was widely sought, shall forever be veiled from mortal eyes.

President Cleveland was a man of power and ability. He has not been credited with marked ability along a particular line, but he possessed an intellect well rounded and balanced, and when once his course was determined in National and private affairs he followed it tenaciously, never swerving, no matter how great the opposition. His rugged integrity, his devotion to duty, his common sense and his ability and honesty were the qualities which, combined, enabled him to be elected Mayor of Buffalo, Governor of New York and President of the Nation.

Relieved of official duties he lived at Princeton such a life as measured up to all desired standards and closed his career conscious of having followed his convictions in the several walks of life. He will go down in history as one of the great Presidents of the United States.

NOT NAILED.

The Credit for getting city delivery of mail for Bedford was not nailed and our Congressman has appropriated it. The people of the town know how the movement was started and the business men well remember the interest taken in the matter by several of our citizens, especially John W. Boor. Since that time Postmaster Lutz has handled the matter, though discouraged at the beginning by Mr. Reynolds. Mr. Reynolds may have called at the Department, but he ought at least be willing to share the credit with Postmaster Lutz.

The American Automobile Association has done much toward securing state appropriations for road building and the roadmakers of the townships along the course of the Glidden tour should show their appreciation of their efforts, past and present, by removing all possible obstacles and making necessary repairs.

BEDFORD COUNTY CONFERENCE

Annual Meeting Held in Mt. Pleasant Church.

The Bedford County Conference of the Allegheny Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church convened in the Mt. Pleasant church, Rev. J. M. Snyder, pastor, June 15. The conference was called to order by the president, Rev. C. D. Russell, who preached the opening sermon.

Tuesday, June 16—The morning session was opened with devotional services by Rev. George C. Probst. Rev. J. H. Diehl was appointed secretary pro tem. The following subjects were opened for discussion: "Infant Baptism," Rev. M. L. Culler, D. D.; "Catechism in the Lutheran Church," Rev. J. M. Snyder.

At the afternoon session the following subjects were discussed: "Relation of Parents to the Sunday School," Rev. J. H. Diehl; "Article XXI of the Augsburg Confession," Rev. H. M. Petrea.

Rev. J. H. Diehl opened the evening session with a discussion on the subject, "Synodical Apportionment," after which the "Lay Movement" was discussed by John T. Matt and other laymen.

Wednesday morning the following subjects were very ably discussed: "Ministerial Support," Rev. H. M. Petrea; "Loyalty to your Church and Pastor," Rev. J. W. Lingle.

The conference was very well attended by the members of the church and we feel certain the community was highly benefited by the discussions.

The following officers were elected for next year: President, Rev. J. H. Diehl; secretary, Rev. H. M. Petrea; treasurer, Rev. J. W. Lingle. Place of next meeting, St. Clairsville.

IN FULL RETREAT.

"Was the President mistaken when he issued his defiance, or are the Republican managers deceived when they think that an aroused public will calmly contemplate the encroachments of predatory wealth? This is retreat No. 6."

"The convention by vote of 50% to 114—more than seven to one—voted down the plank in favor of the popular election of United States Senators. It is true that the President and Secretary Tait have never advocated the popular election of Senators. They seem to take the Hamiltonian rather than the Jeffersonian view, but the most popular reform in the United States today is the reform that has for its object the election of United States Senators by direct vote."

"It has been indorsed five times by the national House of Representatives—three times when the House of Representatives was Republican. It has been indorsed by nearly two-thirds of the states in the Union, and there is probably not a state in the Union in which it could not be indorsed at a popular election, and yet in spite of the record made in the houses, and by the various states, this reform is rejected by a seven to one vote in a Republican national convention."

Roosevelt's Reforms.

"Here are seven propositions upon which the Republican party, in national convention assembled, has retreated from the position taken by that party in Congress or from the position taken by the President. What have Roosevelt Republicans to say?"

"The President has awakened a spirit of reform within his party, he has at last revealed to the world that there are reformers in the Republican party. Can that spirit now be quelled by a stand-pat convention? Millions of Republicans have enlisted at the President's call to arms, and are ready to march forward. Will they turn their backs and turn back merely because the President acquiesces in the soundings of a retreat?"

Woman's World

MRS. COBDEN-SANDERSON.

The Noted English Suffragist Who Has Recently Been in America. The recent visit in this country of Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson of England has revived anew the subject of woman suffrage, a subject never exhausted in the press and the school debating society. The late disturbance in the British parliament when the women suffragist delegates were unjustly dealt with brought about a great deal of discussion and incidentally many facts pointing to the far-reaching effects of the movement.

As far as the American woman and suffrage are concerned, there is nobody in this day and hour who will stop to question and argue about her right of suffrage, for the real question is about how long will it be before she gets it. About Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson a writer in a recent number of the Reader comments as follows:

"The visit to this country of Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson, the woman's suffrage agitator of England, has brought to the realization of some American women as nothing else could do the vitality and determination of the movement in England, 'some' because it is to be doubted if Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson succeeded in reducing many in her American audiences to earnestness. It is not her desire to address suffrage societies or to talk to those already converted. She wishes to make converts, and as she is likely to become the fashioner of the literary clubs, where all she said was greeted with amused appreciation and a light ironical tolerance. The profound sincerity of her ideas did not deeply move her accomplished audiences, who indeed discussed the charm of her accent, the quaint beauty of her face, the unusual grace of her personality, but who said little or nothing about her message. She was pronounced charming, but she was not regarded as the daughter of the great commoner making a further plea for the rights and duties of commonality."

MRS. COBDEN-SANDERSON.

Care of the Hair.

There is many a woman who almost entirely owes her claim to good looks to her hair, for if in good condition and well dressed, which means not only fashionably and carefully, but becomingly, it develops the good points of the features and the charm of expression. So much depends on the line of union between the face and the hair. To some women it is all important to have a point descending on the center of the forehead and soft curls falling to the temples, points which the fashionable coiffures of today favor.

It is well to remember that, while the most important, the hairs that border the face and neck are the most delicate. In these days of friction and massage, the hair is often suffering. It is injured by frizzing it with the comb to increase its apparent bulk and by trying to draw the hair forward in front by means of a comb after it has been dressed. Many hairs come out with both these processes. Do not comb the hair upward before brushing it; on the contrary, let it assume its most natural pose before dressing it. Part the hair down the center before beginning brushing operations and continue the brushing down from the root to the points. When the hair is thick part it in small strands and brush between. The movement of brushing should be a gentle one, not rousing the scalp but directed to the hair. Curling on rollers during the night is a strain, but it is not so injurious as the persistent use of hot irons. When face washes are used, it is wise to introduce a little oil on the edges of the hair, so that none of the face creams and tonics find their way on to it. Massage of the scalp and of the line where hair and face meet does wonders. The scalp should not be hard and immovable on the skull, but soft and easily pushed backward and forward, and this can be promoted by moving it gently with the fingers of both hands without interfering with the hair. This increases the circulation of the blood. In time it will bear fruit by the growth of fresh hairs. The hair should be well ventilated so that the air can get to it. If the scalp is inflexible, the vigor of the hair will suffer.

Our New Hair Vigor

Ayer's Hair Vigor was good, the best that was made. But Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, is better. It is the one great specific for falling hair. A new preparation in every way. New bottle. New contents. Ask your druggist to show it to you, "the new kind."

Does not change the color of the hair.

Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it. Then do as he says.

As we now make our new Hair Vigor it does not have the slightest effect upon the color of the hair. You may use it freely and for any length of time without fear of changing the color. Stops falling hair. Cures dandruff.

Made by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

and on each occasion the ceremony was performed by his brother, an even more renowned bishop. When the first marriage took place, the bishop had to refuse a tempting invitation from an old friend because—so the letter ran—"I am going up to Williamsburg on that date to marry my brother George." The same friend happened to be on the train with him years afterward when he was traveling to the second ceremony. "I am going to marry my brother George," the bishop explained benignly after the business of greetings was over. Again many years passed, and the same journey was taken once more for the same purpose. By a strange coincidence the identical friend ran into the bishop as they hurried through the depot to their respective trains. "Where going, bishop?" the former sang out as they grasped hands and dashed by each other.

"I am going where I am always going," the answer came back ponderously, "to marry my brother George!"—Harper's Weekly.

Madras Curtains.

It will not be long before lace curtains will be only something to recall as a past fancy in household decorations, just as we remember the gold vases, enlarged pictures and picture throws. The lace curtains which will remain, if they do at all, will be fine, expensive and genuine luxuries. The reason for this is because madras and other materials of like kind are fast taking the place of the fragile, lacy drapery; not wholly for window purposes, but portieres and the like are they used. Silks are used for the windows and some of the finest meshed materials and many exquisite striped materials which are like sheer dress fabrics. The tapestry effects in madras are beautiful and suit well the rich house furnishings. Some of the patterns are as rich in appearance as any of the oriental fabrics of rare materials and great value and not very expensive only in the finer grade of madras fabrics. Madras is of different grades, colors and widths, with prices ranged accordingly.

The Use of Cologne.

The most inveterate hater of perfumes could not overlook the real usefulness of cologne or some good toilet water. The beauties of ancient times who reveled in aromatic baths knew better than many moderns the refreshment to tired nerves to be found in this practice. If you have not yet been educated quite up to the standard of an entire aromatic bath, the next time you come in tired from a day's shopping try spraying yourself with cologne after a hot bath. You will be astonished to find how completely your fatigue has flown.

How to Sit Gracefully.

When sitting be sure that your hips are never brought farther forward than your shoulders. The proper way is to get your hips as far back as possible in the chair and firmly settled there. Then you can lean the upper part of your body a stem swaying as it will. You can bend forward or sideways, but you will never want to bend back, and even if you grow to be stout you will still look well when sitting, and if you want to lean back in a steamer chair you may even be graceful.

In the Sickroom.

Good cheer is better than medicine. The jest has an important part to play as a remedy for irritability. Don't tell long stories. Don't rebash other people's trials. Don't think up miserable possibilities.

Order, observation and obedience are three cardinal virtues in a nurse.

Add to these tact, the want of which is the base of nearly every sin a nurse may commit.

For Wet Rubbers.

Get an empty candy bucket with a lid. Cut a little off the lid so it will slip part way into the bucket. Bore a few holes in the lid. You can do this with a redhot poker. When you take your rubbers off all full of snow or water, put them on the lid of the bucket, and all the water will run through the holes into the bucket instead of on the porch or floor.

Big cuts or little cuts, small scratches or bruises or big ones are healed quickly by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It is especially good for piles. Be sure to get DeWitt's. Sold by E. D. Heckerman.

REVOLVING SIPHON.

An Interesting Experiment With Simple Apparatus.

The principle illustrated in the accompanying cut might readily serve to generate power without the use of machinery. It is given, however, merely as an interesting and easily made experiment.

Pour water into a good sized glass tumbler until it is two-thirds full and stand it upon a canister to give it the necessary elevation. Through the flat cork on the surface of the water is a stout straw which transversely supports one of the same diameter. To the latter are attached two other straws of smaller diameter, each of these having a bit of straw about an inch in length attached to the end at an obtuse angle with the outlets cut on the slant to make easier the exit of the water.

All the joints are hollow and are made water tight with sealing wax. The ends of the transverse straw are likewise closed with the wax, but the ends of the depending straws are left open.

Now, to start this unique homemade apparatus in action let two persons suck the open ends of the depending straws until the water begins to flow, and when they take their mouths away the device will begin to revolve, while the water pours steadily from the open ends.

This revolving siphon will soon empty the tumbler, but you may keep the action up as long as you please by pouring water in as fast as the straws let it pour out.

TRAIN O' THOUGHT.

An Interesting Game That Requires Nimble Wits.

A good game for players of nimble wits is called train o' thought. Here the hostess or the leader begins by announcing a word, which all players write at the head of their tablets.

Afterward each player writes below it in a straight line words representing the different places, things, persons or abstract subjects suggested by it.

A rough example of a train of thought and of the distance which it can cover in the space of a few moments would be:

Shakespeare, Stratford, European travel, Warwick festival, Lady Warwick, progressive new women, Colorado, San Francisco, earthquakes, Chile, revolution, Russia, czar, Louis XVI, etc.

At the end of fifteen minutes papers are collected, and the different tracks followed by the trains of thought will be found very fun provoking.

No prize is attached to this game. Each player after receiving his word continues to write connecting links until the bell sounds as a signal for discontinuance.

All begin with the same word and invariably end up differently.

Queer Inns of China.

In China there are many inns where there is shelter for man and beast in very truth and without regard to whether you are man or beast. Animals belonging to the pack trains, men who drive them and any traveler who may chance upon one of these democratic inns lie down—not in peace, but in confusion—together. The braying of asses, bellowing of oxen, bleating of camels and snoring of exhausted mankind all rise together. An American traveler may indeed be thankful that railroads are doing away with pack trains and that soon these queer inns will have no reason for existing.

A Little Lady.

Little Nellie had been taught never to put her fingers into her bowl of bread and milk, but always to use her spoon, like a little lady.

When she visited her grandfather one summer, she was allowed to eat her luncheon out on the step. One day a wee white pig came up and rudely pushed his little pink nose into her bowl of bread and milk. "Oh, oh!" screamed the baby. "Be a lady. Take a 'poon, pig; take a 'poon!"

Tea For Three.

Once Bobby Bear and Rubby Bear and Baby Bear played tea. They had a little tea set that held just enough for three. And Bobby tied on Baby's bib, while Rubby filled the pot. With just a spoon of tea apiece—and water boiling hot.

Now, Bobby Bear and Rubby Bear were quite polite and fine. They never hurried rudely when 'twas time to sup or dine. So Bobby, pouring the tea, took care that Rubby got the most—Bobby got the most—but while they talked wee Baby Bear ate every bit of toast!

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root, pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

I WILL!

I will start anew this morning with a higher, fairer creed;
I will cease to stand complaining of my ruthless neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit reining while my duty's call is clear,
I will waste no moment whining and my heart shall know no fear.

I will look sometimes about me for the things that merit praise;
I will search for hidden beauties that elude the grumbler's gaze;
I will try to find contentment in the paths that I must tread,
I will cease to have resentment when another moves ahead.

I will not be swayed by envy when my rival's strength is shown;
I will not deny his merit, but I'll strive to prove my own;
I will try to see the beauty spread before me, rain or shine—
I will cease to preach your duty and be more concerned with mine.

—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record Herald.

Nature has provided the stomach with certain natural fluids known as the digestive juices, and it is through these juices that the food we eat is acted upon in such a way as to produce the rich, red blood that flows through the veins of our body and thereby makes us strong, healthy and robust, and it is the weakening of these digestive juices that destroys health. It is our own fault if we destroy our own health, and yet it is so easy for any one to put the stomach out of order. When you need to take something take it promptly, but take something you know is reliable—something like Kodol For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Kodol is pleasant to take, it is reliable and is guaranteed to give relief. It is sold by E. D. Heckerman.

Useful Tears

Tears have their use, apart from the crying aspect, inasmuch as they refresh and wash the eyes of animals and birds who live exposed to the dust. The eye requires to be kept clear and clean, and tears perform this duty. A striking example of this is shown when the eye is hurt as it at once commences to water, and often this natural method of cleansing relieves the pain and removes the cause of the discomfort.

Tom Moore of Rural Route 1, Cochran, Ga., writes: "I had a bad sore come on the instep of my foot and could find nothing that would heal it until I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Less than half of a 25 cent box won the day for me by afflicting a perfect cure." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores.

The Chesapeake a Flour Mill

The Chesapeake's final fate was a curious one. She was taken to England and in 1820 was sold to one John Prior, a miller of Wickham, for old timber. Prior tore down his old flour mill and built another one out of the Chesapeake's timbers, many of which still contained solid shot from the Shannon's guns.

A PRESENT CRAZE.

An Interesting Way to Earn One's Daily Bread.

Of all the fads which the American girl has taken up within the last few years that of bookbinding is the most interesting as well as being for many besides the most worth while.

If a girl is possessed of any talent for drawing or designing, bookbinding is a delightful work, as it calls for all the originality and individuality of which she is capable. Naturally any one at all interested in the best in literature and art will find the work all absorbing, for in no other way is it possible to come into such personal touch with an author as in the binding of his books.

From a financial point of view also there is much in favor of learning the art of bookbinding. Many girls, while possessed of a fairly comfortable income, would still like to feel that should anything dire occur they would be capable of earning a livelihood, and bookbinding is a real and recognized profession that once learned could at any time be turned to account. There is really more to be made in getting up a class in bookbinding than in the actual work itself, for a book to be well bound by hand requires some weeks of steady and patient labor, but for a rare old edition a good price will be paid, and for a handsomely bound collection of the works of a long familiar author a most satisfactory sum can always be obtained.

If it appeals at all, bookbinding is a fascinating occupation and as a profession is assuredly far and away more interesting than the average means of earning one's daily bread, and for this very reason has it grown so tremendously popular among girls who, although at present are possessed of all that money can buy, nevertheless feel that they would like to have something upon which to fall back.

CLOTHES SUPPORTER.

Adapted to Support a Large Number of Garments.

When selecting a house the most important requisite in the eyes of the housewife is the number of clothes closets. In her estimation there must be plenty of them, and she prefers those of large capacity. In the majority of cases she must be satisfied with very small closets, which afford but little space for the reception of clothes. By discarding the hooks usually fastened to the top and sides of the closet and employing the clothes supporters shown in the illustration all the available space in the closet could be utilized. It is especially adapted to receive a large number of garments or other articles when in extended position and to fold them into a compact form without creasing or soiling them when contracted. In addition every garment is immediately accessible, thus eliminating the nuisance of removing the garments on the forward hooks in order to reach those on the hooks farther back. It will be obvious that when the tongs are drawn into an extended position a large number of garments can be easily hung upon the lower crossbar and can afterward be folded into compact condition by pushing the supporter to the folded position.—Washington Star.

To Mend a Tear.

Accidents will happen and a tear in one's best skirt is no laughing matter. For most rents baste a piece of thin paper under the rent, drawing it into perfect shape; then darn neatly with ravelings of the material. If one has no pieces, these can sometimes be obtained from the raw edges of the skirt gores. A French patch is made without turning the edges under. The piece is smoothly fitted in and a piece of thin paper basted on. The edges of the patch are then darned with very fine stitches. Always press a darn carefully after finishing it.

The Bachelor.

Poor old bachelor, little he knows What harvest of sadness his selfishness sows! Hard is his task to accomplish his ease. Hardest of all himself is to please. Poor old bachelor, pity him all, Bitter the honey he mixes with gall!

Sleeping and eating and drinking, forsooth. All that he thinks of, and that is the truth.

These take the place of the child he has missed; These compensation for being unloved; Selfishly gloating o'er lack of a wife, Wrapt in himself the whole of his life.

"Glad I'm not in it," he says, with a smirk. Life's solemn duties he's willing to shirk, While nature exacting the penalty sure At best makes the bachelor nothing but poor. The slave of himself, hard tyrant to please. He works like a Turk to accomplish his ease.

Harrigan.

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Jessor Morgan.

There was no uproar in the street, only the long, single file of depositors waiting patiently in the faint hope that the bank might open its doors and let them present at the window the checks which they nervously fingered.

The scene being enacted under the great glass dome within the bank presented a curious contrast to the almost hopeless inactivity outside. In the directors' room the bank examiner and the president sat at the long table scanning piles of collateral.

At the bookkeepers' desks the clerks were helping the staff of accountants to examine the huge ledgers, and in the wire cages the assistant cashier and his staff were counting over the stacks of bills and the great bags of coin. The cashier, Douglas, was not among those present.

Tim Harrigan looked up from his desk as the assistant cashier, Mr. Waring, passed.

"I wish you'd count these," he said. "I've gone over it three times, and it seems to be $200 short."

Waring stepped into the cage and ran over the bills with practiced touch. A second time he counted them and then looked up.

"That is just what we are trying to find out," he said to Harrigan. "For months Douglas has been slipping one or two bills out of a package. It was easier than falsifying the entries, and as most of the money was cash reserve the trick may have been going on for a year. It was when one of the packages was paid out by mistake in Douglas' absence that the first suspicion was aroused. I asked him about it when he came back from lunch. He gave an explanation, but when he did not come down yesterday morning suspicion was confirmed, and somehow the news got out, and so the run started."

"And a precious lot of work it is making," said Harrigan crossly as he thought of the hard labor of the night before and of the broken engagement to take Nell to the theater. Waring laughed knowingly.

"Don't mind about the girl," he advised. "There's every prospect of getting through tomorrow, and you can take her to the show then. Keep an eye peeled for short packages and lay them to one side."

The assistant cashier passed on, and Tim Harrigan bent to his work again. Outside a hand organ grinder had drawn up at the curb to cheer the waiting line with popular songs. Tim grunted his teeth as the familiar strains of "No Wedding Bells For Me" came through the ventilators. For a moment he was half envious of the fleeing cashier.

Douglas had taken plenty of money. Twenty thousand from the previous day's receipts were known to be gone. What else was missing could be told only when the auditing was accomplished. Twenty thousand! Just one of those crisp bills would enable him to get married and set up the little home for which he longed. He and Nell were saving, but their bank account grew with such pitiful slowness. The hand organ changed its tune, and Bascom, in the next cage, laughed. "There's your song, Tim," he said and softly began to hum the words of the chorus:

H-a double r-i-g-a-n spells Harrigan, I'm proud of all the Irish blood that's in me.

Divil a word a man can say agin ye, H-a double r-i-g-a-n ye, H-a double r-i-g-a-n ye, It's a name that a shame never has been connected with, Harrigan—that's me.

Soon the organ was pushed on to more remunerative stands, but the strains kept whirling through Tim's head. It was a catchy air just then popular in the vaudeville houses where he and Nell sought their amusement, and she delighted in singing it to him.

It brought to his mind a picture of the parlor in the little flat where he spent most of his evenings. It was clean and neat and had the aspect of a home, but the tiny flat was small, and the children overran the place. He wanted his own home alone with Nell. Just one of the crisp bills which Douglas had taken would have set them up and have left a tidy balance besides.

Tim grunted his teeth at the thought. He counted the packages of bills mechanically, now and then throwing out one in which the count was short. He had completed the count of the hundred dollar bills and was working on the thousands now.

Here, too, he found discrepancies. It was as easy to slip a couple of these notes from a package of fifty as to abstract them from the packages of a lesser denomination. Douglas' plan had been absurdly simple in a way. Tim wondered that others had not thought of it. He might have done it himself with little fear of detection. He might do it now with absolute impunity.

The thought staggered him for an instant, and he leaned uncertainly against the side of the cage. On the polished counter before him were a score of packages from which bills were missing. What was to prevent his slipping a couple of bills from a perfect package and toss it on the short count pile? It would be blamed on Douglas. No one would ever suspect.

One bill would enable him to marry Nell and fit up a home such as they had dared to dream of. It required only a single deft motion. He could slip the bills off the pile and into his pocket. The fiction of a legacy would

A Square Deal

It assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate woman and child. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition, and much better than is used both for external and internal use. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Dis"covery is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

explain his sudden affluence, and no one would ever dream of his transgression.

He was leaning against the wire partition that separated him from Bascom's compartment, and the clerk looked up.

"Tired out, Tim?" he asked kindly. "It's a tough job. I'll be glad when it's done. I'm as sick of money as a girl in a candy store is of chocolates."

Tim nodded, and Bascom went on counting the rolls of gold coin, whistling softly as he worked. Tim started as the tune caught his attention. It was "Harrigan," and Bascom was whistling the chorus:

H-a double r-i-g-a-n, you see, It's a name that a shame never has been connected with, Harrigan—that's me.

Tim slipped off the high stool and went over to the water cooler. The iced water reduced his fever, and he went back to the dull drudgery of the count, his momentary madness gone. He was proud of his name. He never could face Nell burdened with secret knowledge of guilt; he never could offer her a home that was bought with stolen money. The song had saved him.

It was late in the afternoon when he tabulated the results of his count and took them to the president. The gray haired old man gave a sigh of relief as he saw the total.

"It is not as bad as I had feared," he said slowly, passing the memorandum to the examiner. "Douglas hit us pretty hard, but he did not deal a death-blow."

"The bank will keep open?" cried Tim, a smile spreading over his face. With the bank closed, marriage with Nell seemed further away than ever.

"The bank will keep open," verified the president. "And that reminds me! Mr. Waring is to be promoted to the position of cashier, and he has recommended you for his place as assistant. It will mean a raise of $200 a year. You are married?"

Tim shook his head. "Only engaged," he said simply. "But with the raise I can afford to get married."

"Come to me if you want to borrow money to set up housekeeping with," said the president kindly. "We want our men to have hopes. It steadies them down."

An hour later a notice was posted on the bank doors that the institution would resume payment in the morning, and the line of watchers began to drift away. The last were still lingering about as Tim Harrigan came jauntily down the steps and hurried up the street with springy stride to bear joyful news to Nell. And as he strode along the street the smile that played about his lips gave place to a pucker, and he whistled—

It's a name that a shame never has been connected with, Harrigan—that's me.

AUDREY'S KNIGHT.

By EPES W. SARGENT.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Homer Sprague.

Across the snow clad fields the enchanted castle was brilliantly lighted, and Audrey Sheldon, scanning with longing eyes the wintry wastes, sighed as she tried to picture the comfort hidden by the gray walls.

It was not really a castle nor yet enchanted, but it had pleased Major Kirkwood to have his home a copy of a castle on the Rhine which he had seen on one of his summer trips, and Audrey's imagination supplied the rest.

The major was a bachelor and seldom entertained on a large scale, but every night the lights flashed across the glittering snow, and Audrey loved to stand by the window and imagine that there lived the knight who some day would come to rescue her from the ogre as represented by Mrs. Thompson-Terhune, the major's niece and neighbor.

It was only two years since Audrey herself had been a social queen of a small domain, but something had gone wrong in her father's bank. She never understood what it was, but his personal fortune had gone to sustain the wrecked credit of the institution, and the treachery of some of the directors combined with the wreck of his fortune had sent Henry Sheldon to his grave.

Audrey had faced the situation bravely, and for the two years since her father's death she had been governess to the two Thompson-Terhune girls at a salary so absurdly small that Mrs. Thompson-Terhune lived in daily dread that some one might discover how small was the sum paid and coax the girl away.

Audrey turned away from the window and wearily sat down at the desk to correct the girls' exercises. It was a severely plain apartment, for Mrs. Thompson-Terhune was an ambitious climber whose aims were far in excess of the income she enjoyed, and her money was spent only where it would show.

A few railroad maps were the only wall decorations of the schoolroom, and three hard wooden chairs, a shabby desk too old for office use, a folding bed and a wardrobe completed the furnishing. It was at once the schoolroom and Audrey's apartment.

Patiently the girl worked at her task while she thought bitterly of the gayety downstairs, where preparations were being made for a dinner party in honor of Major Kirkwood's birthday.

Long after the usual hour the housekeeper would send up a trayful of broken meats, the leftovers of the feast, and she would eat it on the top of the desk that also served as a bureau and dressing table. She thought of the time when she would have been one of the guests, and her dainty head fell forward on the arms that were flung upon the desk.

The nervous closing of a door roused her, and she sprang to her feet to face Mrs. Thompson-Terhune.

"You must help me out, Miss Sheldon," she said abruptly. "I am in a most terrible plight. That horrid Martha Homer and her crowd are not coming over. That leaves just thirteen at table, and Major Kirkwood is so horribly superstitious. You simply must pretend to be one of the guests. No one around here knows you, and it will be all right."

"But I have nothing to wear except the most simple frocks," said Audrey. "I sold my evening gowns, you know, to get money for the purchase of things I really needed."

"I have some things that may fit. We are almost of a size. Maria shall help you. Come with me." The hostess turned abruptly and led the way to her own apartments. She was accustomed to implicit obedience from her employees, and Audrey knew better than to object.

She smiled to herself as the deft French maid helped her into a quiet gown of gray. Audrey was a favorite with the servants, and with loving care Marie pinned and draped until she was satisfied with the result.

Audrey was just in time to descend the stairs and receive with Mrs. Thompson-Terhune the first of the guests. With the strange feeling that it was all a part of the enchantment, she moved through the rooms, chatting with the guests until dinner was announced.

Mrs. Thompson-Terhune counted much upon her prospects from the major. He was still hale and hearty, but she lived in pleasurable anticipation of his unexpected taking off, and she sadly needed the money that would come to her at his death.

His word was law with her, and when he insisted that Audrey be placed next to him at table the hostess promptly changed the seating arrangements even while she planned that Audrey should be dismissed the next day with salary in lieu of a notice.

Audrey, all unconscious of the anxieties of her hostess, enjoyed herself to the full, and enjoyment transformed the little face that had become so wan and somber in the last few months.

Knowing how anxious Mrs. Thompson-Terhune was that her guest of honor might enjoy himself, Audrey exerted herself to be entertaining with such good success that the major insisted that Audrey should be brought over to the castle for luncheon some day before her return to town.

"Miss Sheldon unfortunately is returning to town tomorrow," said Mrs.

Thompson-Terhune acidly as she gave the signal to the ladies to rise in order to terminate the argument.

The men were not long in joining the ladies, and the major made straight for Audrey's side, nor would he be dislodged until the party broke up.

As the last carriage rolled away Audrey turned to her employer with eyes that danced. "It was such fun to masquerade!" she cried, with a little laugh. "I wonder what the major would say could he know that my return to town in the morning was merely a change to the nursery governess."

"You will go up to town in the morning," was the quiet response. "I will pay you a month's salary instead of the usual notice. I cannot have my darling children in the charge of a person who so shamelessly pursues a rich man."

The unexpectedness of the dismissal was such a shock that Audrey was too dazed to argue against the charge. She had nowhere to go, and the pitifully small sum she would receive would not last more than two weeks. The happy light gone from her eyes, she groped her way to her room, scarce seeing through her tears.

There was no relenting the next morning, and, with her few belongings packed in the tiny trunk, she was driven to the station for the early train. To her surprise the major was impatiently pacing the platform to the rear of the diminutive depot. He hurried forward to assist her to alight, but Audrey shrank from him.

"I thought you would be going to town on this train," he cried exultantly. "I'm going too. Didn't Isabel come to see you off?"

"It was all a mistake," said Audrey, trying to speak bravely. "It was because of your aversion to thirteen at table that I was called upon. I was Mrs. Thompson-Terhune's governess."

"Was?" he echoed. "So that's the trouble, is it? I guess I do not need more ample explanation. My dear, my niece's fears are well founded," he continued bluntly. "I did fall in love with you. That's why I am here this morning to ask if I may call upon you in town."

"I don't even know where I am going," demurred Audrey.

"I do," said the major, with decision. "You are going to be the guest of my partner's wife until you find a new place—or find that, after all, an old man may still be worthy of love. Do you think that will be so—so hard?"

"Not so very," confessed the girl shyly, and in her heart she knew that already this kindly old man had won her affections. She had not thought of his money, but it was inexpressibly pleasant to be looked after instead of looking after others, and as the train sped along the side of the river Audrey knew that it would not be long before she would come back again to be chatelaine of the castle of her valiant knight.

Mrs. S. Joyce, Claremont, N. H., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy. It cured me of a severe case of kidney trouble of several years standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." Ed. D. Heckerman.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Many Guests Gather at Home of James Gordon.

James Gordon was happily surprised on last Friday by his many friends and neighbors, who gathered at his home near Imier to celebrate his 31st birthday.

At 12 o'clock the guests gathered around the tables centered in the dining room, laden with so many good things which the good women had so well prepared previous to the assemblage. After the feast the guests found their way into the parlors and out onto the porch, where they indulged in pleasant social intercourse, being entertained, in the meanwhile, by Mr. Peterson with his graphophone. Shortly after the music ceased it was discovered that one of the little boys was missing. Upon inquiring it was found to be one of the ministers. He had wandered to the cherry trees on the hill near by and when he returned it was very evident he found the desired fruit, as he was successfully tattooed on the hands and the snow-white shirt in which he was clad was also changed in some manner to one of the polka-dot style.

Perhaps Mr. Crilly who was picking cherries just above him could explain the mystery. A very appropriate address was made by Rev. Zehring, after which the guests returned to their respective homes, wishing Mr. Gordon many more happy birthdays.

Those present were Rev. J. W. Zehring, Rev. J. D. Hunsicker and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Claycomb, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. John Ickes, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fickes, Mr. and Mrs. David Bittinger, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Feather, Mr. and Mrs. Quitman Claycomb, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dively, Mrs. Samuel Gordon and daughter Lily, Mrs. Sidney Fickes, daughter Carrie and grandchildren, Ray Hubbard, Mattie Fickes, Sadie Gordon, Laura Gordon, Nellie Gordon, Ruth Feather, Annie Claycomb, Rilly Dively, Mary Ickes, Ruth Ickes, Howard Feather, Paul Feather, Charles Feather, Elmer Claycomb, Palmer Claycomb, Elmer Ickes, Grant Ickes, Norman Bittinger, Frank Peterson, Joseph Gordon, John Gordon, Charles Gordon, Sewell Exline and Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon.

Mr. Gordon was presented with a handsome and useful birthday gift.

Dance at Osterburg.

The young people of Osterburg and vicinity gave a dance in the band hall Friday evening. A number of invited friends from Wolfburg were present. Refreshments were served at a late hour. The music was fine, and was commented upon by all. The guests departed at an early hour Saturday morning, and the general opinion was that the affair was a success and each wished for a repetition of the event before many weeks.

Those present were, Ella R. Smith of Bedford; Elsie Harclerode, Flora M. Diehl, Louise Bowkley, Mrs. Bowkley, Helena Weber, J. G. Carney, George Bowkley, Charles A. Struckey, H. Struckey, John C. Pearson, of Wolfburg; Elizabeth Weisel, Naomi Ake, Nettie and Georgia Claycomb, Anna and Salinda Mosses, Katie and Minnie Lohr, Amanda Carn, Effie Mosses, Bonnie Berkheimer, Rose and Mayme Geisler, Dossie Stambaugh, Rhoda Stambaugh, Ada Smith, W. E. Griffith, Bruce Groyle, John Ake, Roy Claycomb, J. R. Cobler, Guy and Ralph Hengst, Charles Oster, D. B. Whitestone, D. W. Stambaugh, Frank Otto, Ray Oster. The musicians were J. H. Stambaugh, guitar; S. B. Stambaugh and Sheridan Ickes, violins.

A BEDFORD BOY

Was the First Settler at Mansfield, Ohio.

Miss Florence Junébell Shires of Mansfield, O., daughter of James E. Shires, formerly of this place, in a recent letter to a Bedford boy, says: "At the high school commencement we had 69 in our class, and each one wrote a thesis, but only twelve spoke at commencement. These had for their subject 'Mansfield,' as our city celebrated its centennial this month. I learned from one of the addresses, that the first settler here was James Smith, who came from Bedford, Pa., in 1808. So you see dear old Bedford had done more than we give her credit for."

The Lure of Boyhood Scenes

Farewell to the marts of commerce,
Adieu to the fight for fame;
For I've gathered myself a fortune
And builded myself a name.
I'm tired of the city's torments,
Its clatter, and rush, and glare;
Days blurred and murky and gloomy
Nights that are only a glare;
Weary of gray walls, sentinel-like,
That stand like a waiting foe
To shut you in with the dust and din
And grime of the street below.
So here's to the scenes of boyhood,
Upland and meadow and dale,
Each with its harvest of memories
Sweet as a nursery tale.

For I want to see the sun rise,
And to get away
Where the light of day
Has the old-time splendor yet;
Where the green hills kiss the heavens
And the woods are full of song,
And the meadows croon
To the summer moon
In an ecstasy all night long!
—From the June Bohemian.

BARNETT'S STORE

A Penny-Weight of Performance is Worth a Ton of Weak-Kneed Promises.

Every day of the year this big store gladly fulfils its promises. Has a bigger and better stock than can be found in any other place in the county. Can supply your or your home wants quickly and satisfactorily. Makes your money hold out longer. Gives more and better goods for a given sum. Performs all its promises without trying to wriggle out on small technicalities. What you see temptingly advertised is not only here, but here in abundance. The stock of everything sold is large—very large.

The big store accommodates the wants of the rich and the poor, and both come in for profit-sharing, because we always have and always will undersell other places where similar goods are sold. It's wasting time to dispute these claims; we have hundreds of pleased customers who gladly testify to the truth of our assertions. We have long since learned the wisdom and truth of the old saying: "An ounce of performance is worth a pound of broken promises." And so have you.

Why We Advertise Henderson Corsets

It does not pay us to advertise a poor thing

To urge, advise and recommend that you buy some inferior article hurts us, because you will remember the injury we have done you—because you have a degree of confidence in us and we cannot afford to push an unsatisfactory item. This applies to corsets with perhaps greater force than with any other article of wear. And we advertise

Henderson Corsets because, while the profit is small, the satisfaction to the wearer is great, and second sales come without effort on our part. Women know a good thing when they have tried it. This week we have a full stock of the following:

393 @ $ .50	444 @ $ .50
666 @ 1.00	262 @ 1.00
333 @ 1.25	888 @ 1.25
